UNLOCKING INFINITE POTENTIAL

HELPING YOUNG PEOPLE THRIVE IN A CHALLENGING WORLD

Established more than half a century ago to help young people navigate a new world, the need for The Duke of Edinburgh's International Award has never been greater.

Today, young people across the world face unprecedented challenges, as their wellbeing, access to education, and lack of decent work are all under severe pressure.

During the pandemic alone:

- More than 1.5 billion young people have been affected by school closures ¹
- More than 1 in 6 young people have become unemployed since the beginning of the crisis ²
- 86% of young people are worried about their future ³

We need to take action to ensure 'generation disrupted' does not become 'generation lost'.

Supporting young people to:

Find their purpose, place and passion in the world

Build self belief, resilience and adaptability

Be positive agents of change, for themselves and their communities

Take control of their lives and their futures

Millions have been impacted by the Award, experiencing first-hand that not all learning happens in the classroom.

OUR GLOBAL AMBITION

ACCESS FOR ALL

Open to all young people aged 14-24, regardless of background; the Award is genuinely inclusive. It can be a powerful tool to support young people leading particularly challenging lives - such as those with a disability, living in poverty, young parents, refugees, young offenders, those who are at risk or marginalised.

Just as no two young people are the same, no two Awards are the same. Whilst the Award's framework remains the same wherever it is delivered, each young person designs and creates their own bespoke programme, unique to them and their situation.

The Award is delivered via hundreds of thousands of youth-focused partners and operators, including schools, youth organisations, examination boards and youth offender institutions

The skills and qualities that the Award helps young people to develop can change their lives, and the lives of others.

It grows awareness and understanding. It empowers participants to reach out beyond their situation to build a new future. We want every young person to have this opportunity; to have equal access to the Award.

The value and impact of the Award extends far beyond the intrinsic benefits enjoyed by the young people.

We believe the Award framework can be a blueprint for investing in human capital, specifically strengthening resilience, improving employability and entrepreneurship, promoting global prosperity and helping the world's most vulnerable.

The Award does this through working in partnership with young people and their communities, supporting them in finding their own development solutions.

Participation in the Award also directly supports young people to contribute to a number of the United Nation's Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs), including Quality Education and Decent Work and Economic Growth.

Our established impact measurement initiatives, developed in collaboration with academic institutions and partners have revealed that the Award has a direct, positive impact (both financial and non-financial) on the people and communities it touches.

In 2021, the Award had a Global Social Value of £509 million.

The impact of the Award:

Global Social Value of £509m

Improved employability and earning potential

Improved physical health and fitness

Improved mental health and emotional wellbeing

Increased engagement with charitable and community causes

Improved environmental impact

Increased social cohesion

Reduced offending
